(1) on the National Assembly being elected and distribution of mandates;

- (2) on preliminary distribution of mandates of Deputies of the National Assembly;

3. Where the Central Electoral Commission has not adopted any of the decisions provided for in points 3, 4 and 5 of part 1 of this Article:

(1) a decision on the National Assembly being elected and distribution of mandates shall be adopted where as a result of the election one of the political parties (alliance of political parties) running in elections has received at least 53 mandates as a result of distribution of mandates as prescribed by this Article;

(2) a decision on preliminary distribution of mandates of Deputies of the National Assembly shall be adopted where any of the political parties (alliance of political parties) running in elections fails to receive at least 53 mandates as a result of distribution of mandates as prescribed by this Article. In case of distribution of additional mandates to some political parties (alliances of political parties) in accordance with Articles 96-98 of this Code, other political parties (alliances of political parties) shall preserve the mandates available for them as a result of the preliminary distribution.

4. Mandates of the National Assembly shall be distributed among the electoral lists of those political parties (alliances of political parties) which have received 5 per cent, in case of a political party, and 7 per cent, in case of an alliance of political parties, of ballot papers with affirmative vote out of the sum of the total number of ballot papers with affirmative vote and the number of inaccuracies. Where only one political party (alliance of political parties) has received at least 5 (7) per cent of ballot papers with affirmative vote out of the sum of the total number of ballot papers with affirmative vote and the number of inaccuracies, the next 2 political parties and alliances of political parties having received respectively the maximum number of ballot papers with affirmative vote shall participate in the distribution of mandates. Where no more than 3 political parties (alliance of political parties) have run in the elections of the National Assembly, all the political parties (alliances of political parties) shall take part in the distribution of mandates.

5. Mandates of the National Assembly shall be distributed among political parties (alliances of political parties) in proportion with the number of ballot papers with affirmative vote cast in favour of each of them. The calculation of the number of mandates available for each political party (alliance of political parties) shall be carried out as follows: the number of ballot papers with affirmative vote cast in favour of each political party (alliance of political parties) shall be multiplied by 101, the product shall be divided by the total number of ballot papers with affirmative vote cast in favour of political parties (alliance of political parties) having passed the threshold, and integer numbers shall be parted, which shall be the numbers of mandates available for each political party (alliance of political parties).

6. The remaining mandates shall be distributed among political parties (alliances of political parties) by the sequence of value of remainders, by the principle of one mandate to each. In case the values of remainders are equal, the contested mandate shall be given to the political party (alliance of political parties) with the highest number of ballot papers with affirmative vote cast in favour, and in the event of a tie, the mandate shall be given by drawing of lots.

7. Where the number of mandates received by a political party (alliance of political parties) is even, mandates equal to 50 per cent of the number of mandates shall be given to candidates in the national list of a political party (alliance of political parties). Where the number of mandates received by a political party (alliance of political parties) is odd, mandates equal to the integer part of 50 per cent of the number of mandates shall be given to candidates in the national list of a political party (alliance of political parties). The remaining part of mandates received by the political party (alliance of political parties) shall be distributed among the districts.

8. The number of mandates available for each district shall be determined by the coefficient received for each district, which is calculated by the following formula:

$$Cd = \frac{Fd}{Md + 1}$$

Cd — coefficient of the district;

Fd — the number of ballot papers with affirmative vote cast in favour of the political party (alliance of political parties) in the given district;

Md — the total number of mandates already received by that district, in calculating the coefficient of the district for the next mandate.

The district having the highest coefficient at the beginning of calculation of coefficients shall receive one mandate. The next vacant mandate shall be received by the district having a relatively higher coefficient as compared to other districts. Calculation of coefficients shall be repeated until all mandates are distributed. In case of equal highest coefficients, the mandate shall be distributed by drawing of lots.

9. Four mandates of Deputies shall be distributed among national minority representatives by the principle of 1 mandate to each of the first 4 national minorities with the largest number of resident population according to the data of the latest census preceding the elections. To this end, mandates shall be distributed among the political parties (alliances of political parties) having passed the threshold, by the coefficient received for each mandate, which shall be calculated by the following formula:

where:

Cp — coefficient of a political party (alliance of political parties);

Fm — the number of mandates received from the first part of the list of the political party (alliance of political parties);

Mm — the total number of mandates already received by the political party (alliance of political parties) out of the 4 mandates for national minority representatives, in calculating the coefficient of the political party (alliance of political parties) for the next mandate.

Mandates of national minority representatives shall be distributed among political parties (alliances of political parties) by the sequence of reduction of coefficients. In case of equal coefficients, the mandate shall be distributed by drawing of lots.

When distributing mandates of national minority representatives a political party (alliance of political parties) shall provide the mandate to the national minority under the smallest record number in its list not yet having a mandate. Where there is not any in the second part of the electoral list of the political party (alliance of political parties), the turn for the distribution shall be passed on to the political party (alliance of political parties) having the next coefficient by value.

Article 96. Minority and majority additional mandates

1. Where as a result of the election any political party receives, as prescribed by Article 95, the majority but less than 54 per cent of the total number of mandates, that political party shall receive as many additional mandates as necessary for the integer part of the per cent of mandates of that political party to result in 54 per cent.

2. Where as a result of the election any political party receives more than $\frac{2}{3}$ of the total number of mandates, other political parties shall receive as many minimum additional mandates (AM), so that in the result the total number of their mandates (TNM) equals to $\frac{1}{3}$ of the total number of mandates of the National Assembly or more. The number of additional mandates available for each political party shall be determined as follows: the number of mandates received by that political party shall be multiplied by the number of AM, the product shall be divided by the TNM, and the integer numbers shall be parted which shall be the numbers of additional mandates available for the given political party. The remaining mandates shall be distributed among political parties by the sequence of value of remainders, by the principle of one mandate to each. In case the values of remainders are equal, the contested mandate shall be given to the political party with the highest number of mandates, and in the event of a tie, the mandate shall be given by drawing of lots.

3. Distribution of additional mandates, prescribed by this Article, among the national and district electoral lists, as well as among electoral districts, shall be carried out in such a manner so as to observe the rules of part 7 of Article 95 of this Code for the distribution of mandates available for a political party.

4. Within the meaning of part 2 of this Article, as well as Article 98 of this Code, the total number of mandates shall include also the mandates allocated to national minorities and shall comprise 105 mandates.

Article 97. Formation of political coalitions

1. Within 3 days after adoption of the decision provided for in point 2 of part 1 of Article 95 of this Code, any political party (alliance of political parties) having passed the electoral thresholds may form a political coalition with maximum 2 other political parties (alliances of political parties) having passed the electoral thresholds, where the sum of the votes cast in favour of them is sufficient for receiving the majority of the total number of mandates, and they have come to an agreement as to the candidate for Prime Minister.

2. Coalition member political parties (alliances of political parties) must — by 18:00 of the day of deadline for forming a coalition — submit to the Central Electoral Commission the decisions on forming a coalition of permanently functioning governing bodies of coalition member political parties (all member political parties to alliances of political parties). The decision on forming a coalition must contain the surname, name, patronymic of the candidate for Prime Minister. In case of failure to submit or incomplete submission of the mentioned decisions within the prescribed time limit the coalition shall be considered as not having formed.

3. Where the formed coalition has received the majority but less than 54 per cent of the total number of mandates, the coalition shall receive as many additional mandates as necessary for the integer part of the per cent of mandates of the coalition to result in 54 per cent.

Additional mandates shall be distributed among coalition member political parties (alliances of political parties) in proportion with the number of ballot papers with affirmative vote cast in favour of each of them. The calculation of the number of mandates available for each political party (alliance of political parties) shall be carried out as follows: the number of ballot papers with affirmative vote cast in favour of each political party (alliance of political parties) shall be multiplied by the number of additional mandates, the product shall be divided by the total number of ballot papers with affirmative vote cast in favour of the coalition member political parties (alliances of political parties), and integer numbers shall be parted which shall be the numbers of additional mandates available for each political party (alliance of political parties). The remaining mandates shall be distributed among political parties (alliances of political parties) by the sequence of value of remainders, by the principle of one mandate to each. In case the values of remainders are equal, the contested mandate shall be given to the political party (alliance of political parties) with the highest number of ballot papers with affirmative vote cast in favour, and in the event of a tie, the mandate shall be given by drawing of lots.

Distribution of additional mandates — available for coalition member political parties (alliance of political parties) — among national and district lists, as well as among districts shall be carried out in such a manner so as to observe the rules of part 7 of Article 95 of this Code for the distribution of mandates available for a political party (alliance of political parties). In the case provided for in this part, the Central Electoral Commission shall also adopt a decision on allocation of additional mandates.

4. The Central Electoral Commission shall — on the day following the expiry of the deadline provided for in part 2 of this Article — adopt a decision on holding a second round of elections or on the National Assembly being elected.

Article 98. Second round of election

Two political parties (alliances of political parties) having received the maximum number of ballot papers with affirmative vote during the first round shall have the right to run in the second round of election, with the exception of the case prescribed by part 3 of this Article.

2. New alliances — comprised of political parties (alliances of political parties) having passed the thresholds — may be formed with political parties (alliances of political parties) having the right to run in the second round of election, where they have come to an agreement on the candidate for Prime Minister.

The application on forming a new alliance — signed by heads of all member political parties to the new alliance (all member political parties to the alliance of political parties) — shall be submitted to the Central Electoral Commission — on the 2nd day following the adoption of the decision on holding a second round, by 18:00 — as prescribed by the Central Electoral Commission. The mentioned application must contain the surname, name, patronymic of the candidate for Prime Minister. In case of failure to submit the application on forming a new alliance within the prescribed time limit or in case of submitting it incompletely, the new alliance shall be considered as not formed.

3. Where 2 political parties (alliances of political parties), having received the maximum number of ballot papers with affirmative vote, form a new alliance together, the next political party (alliance of political parties) with the maximum number of ballot papers with affirmative vote, having received the maximum number of ballot papers with affirmative vote and not included in the new alliance, shall obtain the right to run in the second round of election with which a new alliance may be formed as well. The application on forming that new alliance, signed by heads of member political parties to the alliance (all member political parties to the alliances of political parties) shall be submitted to the Central Electoral Commission by 18:00 of the 4th day following the decision of the Central Electoral Commission on holding a second round of election, as prescribed by the Central Electoral Commission.

4. Where the new alliance — the member political parties (alliances of political parties) to which have together received 54 per cent or more of the total number of mandates by the results of the first round — wins in the second round of election, they shall preserve the received mandates.

5. Where the new alliance — the member political parties (alliances of political parties) to which have together received more than 2/3 of mandates by the results of the first round — wins in the second round of election, the other political parties (alliances of political parties) shall receive additional mandates as prescribed by part 2 of Article 96 of this Code.

6. The political party (alliance of political parties) or the new alliance having won in the second round of election which (whose member political parties together) has received less than 54 per cent of mandates by the results of the first round, shall receive additional mandates as prescribed by parts 1 and 3 of Article 96 of this Code.

In case of a tie, the mandate shall be given by drawing of lots. Where there is no other candidate in the given district list, the mandate shall be passed on to the first part of the national list. Where there is no other candidate in the first part of the national list, the mandate shall remain vacant.

The mandate of a Deputy — who has waived the mandate under the first part of the national list or who has been elected as Deputy therefrom and whose powers have been early terminated — shall be given to the next candidate in sequence in the first part of the national electoral list of that political party upon a protocol of the Central Electoral Commission, within a 1-week period after notifying the Commission, and where as a result of it, the number of representatives of any sex in the given faction falls below and results in less than 20 per cent, it shall be given to the next candidate of less represented sex in the first part of the national electoral list of that political party, if any. Where there is no other candidate in the first part of the national list, the mandate shall remain vacant.

The order of names of candidates shall be determined by drawing of lots. The ballot paper may be substituted by an electronic data file expressing the preferences.

2. In the ballot paper the elector shall enter the figure "1" in the tick box next to the name of the candidate to whom the elector gives his or her first preference. Subsequent integer numbers, starting from "2", shall then be respectively entered in the tick boxes next to the names of other candidates in the order of preference given thereto. No number shall be entered in the tick boxes against those candidates to whom the elector gives no preference, but in any case, preference for candidates must be expressed at least for the number of vacant seats. At a particular stage of summarisation of voting results, a ballot paper shall be considered as given in favour of the continuing candidate who has the highest level of preference votes in that ballot paper.

3. The following main concepts are used in this Article:

(1) continuing candidate — candidate who is neither excluded from the counting nor declared as elected at a certain stage of summarisation of voting results;

(2) value of ballot paper — numerical value given to the ballot paper as prescribed by this Article at a certain stage of summarisation of voting results;

(3) total value of ballot papers — the total sum of values of all ballot papers not excluded from the counting at a certain stage of summarisation of voting results;

(4) value of votes for the candidate — the total sum of values of ballot papers cast in favour of the candidate, which are not excluded from the counting;

(5) passing quota — the minimum number of votes necessary for being deemed to be elected at a certain stage of summarisation of voting results;

(6) value of surplus votes for the candidate — the difference between the passing quota and the value of votes for the candidate, who is deemed to be elected by the result of a certain stage;

(7) gender equality standard — a quantitative standard ensuring gender equality between the elected candidates (for example, the number of representatives of each sex among the elected candidates must not be more than 6).

4. The voting results shall be summarised electronically. For the summarisation of voting results, the following steps shall be taken in turn until the summarisation of voting results is completed. All the arithmetical actions shall be done with 2-digit accuracy after the decimal point.

Step 1. Invalid ballot papers shall be excluded from the counting. A ballot paper shall be deemed invalid if it contains no preference given to candidates, at least equal to the number of vacant positions, or more than one candidate has received the same level of preference votes. All valid ballot papers shall be deemed not excluded from the counting, and the value of those ballot papers shall be considered as "1".

Step 2. Ballot papers cast in favour of candidates not excluded from the counting shall be sorted as per the candidates. All candidates shall be deemed to be continuing candidates.

Step 3. Where the election of a representative of one of the sexes a priori violates the gender equality standard:

- a. all the representatives of that gender shall be excluded from the counting;
- b. their ballot papers shall be distributed in the following manner: the ballot paper with the same value shall be added to the ballot papers of the continuing candidates in favour of whom it is cast.

Step 4. Where the number of all the elected candidates equals to the number of vacant seats, the summarisation of the voting results shall be completed.

Where the number of all the elected candidates is smaller than the number of vacant seats, but the compliance with gender equality standard unequivocally predetermines the candidates who are to fill the vacant seats, these respective candidates shall also be announced as elected, and the summarisation of the voting results shall be completed.

Step 5. The value of votes for the candidate shall be calculated for each continuing candidate. Based on these calculations, the total value of ballot papers shall be calculated, which shall be the total sum of votes of all continuing candidates.

The passing quota shall be calculated in accordance with the following formula:

$$\text{Passing quota} = \text{Total value of ballot papers} / (\text{Number of vacant seats} + 1) + 0.01$$

Step 6. Where there is no continuing candidate whose total value of votes is higher than or equal to the passing quota, the process of summarisation of voting results shall continue from Step 10.

Step 7. The continuing candidate, whose total value of votes is the highest, shall be deemed as elected.

Step 8. For the elected candidate the value of surplus votes for the candidate, equalling to the difference of the value of the votes for the candidate and the passing quota, shall be counted. A new value of vote shall be given to each ballot paper cast in favour of that candidate. For the purpose of counting it, the value of vote of the ballot paper shall be multiplied by the value of surplus votes for the candidate and divided by the value of votes for the candidate.

Step 9. All ballot papers of an elected candidate shall be re-distributed in the following manner: the ballot paper shall be added to ballot papers of the candidate in favour of whom it is cast. Where there is no such continuing candidate, the ballot paper shall be excluded from the counting and shall never be used during the following summarisation steps. The summarisation of the voting results shall continue from Step 3.

Step 10. A continuing candidate with the lowest value of votes shall be excluded from the counting unless it a priori violates the gender equality standard. In case it violates the gender equality standard, the candidate having received the minimum votes, whose exclusion will not a priori violate the gender equality standard, shall be excluded from the counting. Where due to the tie of votes it is impossible to determine the candidate having received the minimum votes, the candidate to be excluded shall be determined by drawing of lots.

Ballot papers of the candidate excluded from the counting shall be distributed in the following manner: the ballot paper with the same value shall be added to ballot papers of the continuing candidate in favour of whom it is cast. The summarisation of the voting results shall continue from Step 3.
